About Autistic Piano Diary

MUSIC FOR ALL

“ Piano teaching for the special needs is a very honorable life lesson that I should pursue with love, as a career, interest and responsibility. ”

With more than 10 years of experience in piano teaching, Carolyn Siow tutors students of all ages, grades and specializes in teaching piano playing to children with special needs (mostly autistic) for 8 years, with versatility and dedication. In April 2016, she and Rom Tan composed two songs, one of it was entitled “Hei Bai Se Cai” (Black and White to represent our life’s colour - [black and white means the piano keys]) under Rock Records Malaysia in conjunction of World Autism Awareness Month.

Carolyn carries the mission and passion towards the advantages of piano learning for the autistic children. She established a centre “Autistic Piano Diary” a few years ago with aims to connect parents with special needs children.

The motivation of her work comes largely from the interests of solving problems faced by choosing the suitable piano learning materials for the autistic piano students. Although teaching music for many years, she realised is a honorable job to teach autistic children. She now choose it as a career which is very much supported by the qualification as a master degree in music.

Through the course of teaching, more benefits were realised in the improvement of attention span, improving focus ability, triggering fine and gross motor skills, improve in visual skills, eye-hand coordination, and musicality as well. However, piano learning is certainly a long-term commitment, but it will be a meaningful learning journey, as we will see how children overcome numerous challenges during the process.

We would extend invitation to more parents with special needs children to join the “Autistic Piano Diary” to walk with us through this musical journey together.

About Philomusic And Art Centre

BE INSPIRED

“Philomusic was established by my ideas of philosophy and artistic development of music in life.”

Philomusic was founded in 2017 by Inez Yap. She started learning the piano in high school. With a strong will and passion to learn, she has gone through a lot of struggles in the progress of learning, yet she never thought of giving up. With her experience in learning, she understands the importance of having a good teacher and discipline in learning music.

Many years teaching as a private music teacher, she choose to establish herself as a full time music teacher. She has been studying and researching on the learning behaviour of students, developing the most effective teaching method in helping students to overcome their struggles and difficulties in the process. This is the top challenge, yet the most satisfying achievement gained through the process.

She always set a very high expectation on her students, more than the students may think they can achieve. Whether or not the student actually achieves the expectation is not the point. The process of reaching those heights is how the student truly discovers their love for music.

To spread out Inez's philosophy in music education, she founded Philomusic to foster more teachers with the same believe and passion to join this meaningful journey, inspiring anyone who loves music and art to experience the challenges in the field of music and art.

The Founder

Inez Yap holds a professional qualification in music performance - Associate of Trinity College London (ATCL) and is currently further study in Licentiate of Trinity College London (LTCL). She is also a Violist in PJ Philharmonic Orchestra (PJPO).
